Vico Ortiz is a Puerto Rican, non-binary actor best known for their roles in Our Flag Means Death and The Sex Lives of Teenage Girls. They are passionate about advocating to make more room for Latinx queer actors in both the American and Latin film industry, and they are an outspoken activist for themselves. They speak on the importance of having diverse and inclusive groups of people both on-screen and off, as well as the responsibility of the film industry to reflect our diverse society. Ortiz is also passionate about making the Spanish language more inclusive for gender-diverse individuals, advocating for more gender-neutral language.
